The military connected student moves an average of every 2-3 years and attends 6-9 schools before graduating. Many of these students are talented athletes. Those living overseas often do not have the visibility as stateside students.

This is an update to a request I received to assist our students when searching for athletic scholarships. The request was to provide a list of college coaches who could provide information that would make student athletes more knowledgeable and informed in order to compete for athletic scholarships. The information provided will not only assist athletes but also non-athletes in their scholarship search.

The following information identifies:

- Academic requirements for student athletes
- List of college/universities that sponsor NCAA sports
- Names, addresses, and phone numbers for athletic contacts by division
- Student-athletic eligibility requirements
- Number of schools that sponsor each sport
- Information about sports' scholarships, athletic scholarships, and other forms of financial aid for student athletic
- Scholarship and Financial Aid for ALL students

Of schools with a NCAA affiliation, only Division I and Division II schools may offer athletic scholarships. Division III schools are precluded from offering athletic scholarships. Schools with other affiliations, such as NAIA, offer athletic scholarships according to the policies of the associations to which they belong.

The types of scholarships that may be offered include scholarships for archery, baseball, basketball scholarships, crew, cross country, fencing, field hockey, football, golf, gymnastics, hockey, lacrosse, rifle scholarships, sailing, skiing, soccer, softball, swimming, tennis, track & field, volleyball, and wrestling scholarships.

Athletic scholarships are generally not available for graduate study.

For individual sports scholarships that match your profile, search the FastWeb scholarship database.

Gender Equity in Athletic Scholarships

Female students should be aware that federal law (Title IX of the Education Amendments of 1972, 20 USC 1681-1688) requires athletic scholarships to be distributed in an equitable fashion among the sexes. Consequently, a considerable amount of financial aid is available for women with athletic ability. The OPE Equity in Athletics Disclosure Website provides statistical information on men's and women's intercollegiate sports at almost 2,000 US colleges and universities, as mandated by the Equity in Athletics Disclosure Act.

General Resources

National Collegiate Athletic Association (NCAA)

The NCAA site provides information about the recruiting process, including information about NCAA rules on academic eligibility and recruitment procedures. It also includes information about NCAA scholarship programs and financial aid for student-athletes, as well as school-administered athletic scholarships. For more information, call 1-913-339-1906.

Recruiting Services

FinAid does not recommend using scholarship recruiting services for high school athletes, as these are rarely worthwhile.

Instead of paying a fee to a recruiting service, put together a profile of your athletic and academic qualifications. Include copies of the best newspaper clippings in which your performance is mentioned, letters of recommendation from your current coaches, and your sport's season schedule. A short 5-10 minute video of your athletic performance may also be helpful. Send copies of this athletic portfolio to the coaches at the schools you are interested in.

The number of schools that offer athletic scholarships is rather limited. Most athletic scholarships provide only partial support, and require that the student make satisfactory academic progress for renewal. Coaches can also refuse to renew an athletic scholarship if the student's athletic performance falls short of expectations. If the student quits the team, the athletic scholarship is usually terminated immediately. (Athletic scholarships are not terminated if the student is injured during competition.)

Schools that offer significant numbers of sports scholarships include:

- Albertson College (ID)
- Baker University (KS)
- Bethel College (KS)
- Brescia University (KY)
- Briar Cliff University (IA)
- Centenary College of Louisiana (LA)
- Concordia University (NE)
- Dana College (NE)
- Erskine College (SC)
- Hannibal-LaGrange College (MO)
- Holy Names University (CA)
- McPherson College (KS)
- Michigan State University (MI)
- Midland Lutheran College (NE)
- Missouri Baptist College (MO)
- Morningside College (IA)
- Newman University (KS)
- North Greenville College (SC)
- Pikeville College (KY)
- Regent University (VA)
- St. Vincent College (PA)
- Tabor College (KS)
- Talladega College (AL)
- Tri-State University (IN)
- University of Mary (ND)
- Walsh University (OH)
- Warner Southern College (FL)
- Webber International University (FL)
- Wingate University (NC)

Sports Scholarship Sites

The following web sites are associated with sponsors of non-college-controlled sport scholarships:

- Michigan High School Athletic Association (<http://www.mhsaa.com/>)
- National Strength and Conditioning Association (NSCA) (<http://www.nsca-lift.org/Foundation/>)
- Nike's Casey Martin Award (www.nikebiz.com)

- US Soccer Foundation Grants (<http://www.kintera.org> )
- Women's Sports Foundation <http://www.womenssportsfoundation.org>) Women's Western Golf Association Scholarships (<http://www.wwga.org/>)

In addition, the Adaptive Athletics Scholarships is noteworthy in that it provides support to disabled athletes. This scholarship is tenable only at the University of Arizona.

Books

The following is a list of books focusing on athletic scholarships. Some describe the recruiting process, some list schools that provide sports scholarships and some do both. For further reading, be sure to check the FinAid bibliography. Check the copyright date before buying any book about scholarships, as any book that is more than one year old is too old to be useful.
